1. MODULE DESCRIPTION

This course stems from the belief that creative writing can bring substantial benefits in various areas of foreign language teaching. On the one hand, it is an effective means for innovative language practice in which students can express personal meaning; on the other, it creates academic benefits in terms of text analysis and comprehension, both for content and form, thus creating a nexus between reading and writing. Moreover, it can also make the language learning process enjoyable and stimulating. The course will be highly practical; students will do their own creative writing and also become familiar with numerous games and activities to develop in their classes. Since the course is taught in English and students will have to do some creative writing themselves, a high level of English is expected (at least a C1 Common European Framework).

2. AIMS

Basic and generic competences:

- Students should apply the knowledge they acquire and be able to solve problems in new or unfamiliar settings within a broader (or multidisciplinary) context related to their field of study.
- Students should possess learning skills that will enable them to continue studying in a largely self-directed or autonomous manner.
- Apply the knowledge acquired in new or unfamiliar settings within broader contexts (or multidisciplinary ones) related to the teaching of English.
- Can integrate knowledge and handle the complexity of making judgments based on information that, while incomplete or limited, includes a series of reflections on the social and ethical responsibilities connected to applying knowledge and judgments.

Specific competences:

- Deepen the knowledge of the English language and perfect academic discourse, both oral and written, used in the English classroom.
- Participate in debates and group activities related to teaching the English language while developing the ability to think critically and for oneself.
- Search, obtain, process, and communicate information (oral, printed, audiovisual, digital, or multimedia), transform it into knowledge and apply it in the teaching and learning of English as a foreign language.
- Pursue ongoing training as teaching professionals by using a suitable bibliography, participating in courses, attending conferences, etc.

Learning Outcomes

By the end of the course, participants are expected to:

- View writing as a process and a method of discovery.
- Provide an understanding of the characteristics of creative writing.
- Create a greater awareness of purpose and audience.
- Provide a framework for language analysis and writing techniques.
- Acquire practical knowledge on how to generate ideas and develop narrative and descriptive strategies to stimulate writing
- Learn about the importance of drafting, revising and evaluating writing activities.
- Provide an understanding of ways to help students overcome their fears of writing

4. TEACHING AND LEARNING METHODS

4.1. Student workload (100 hours)

Class contact hours	12 hours
Independent study	53 hours
Tasks, activities and readings (compulsory or optional)	25 hours
Preparation of presentations in class	8 hours
Individual tutorials	2 hours

4.2. Learning activities

We will take a workshop approach to creative writing; thus, class attendance and active participation are essential. Participants will be introduced to and have the opportunity to try out a variety of exploratory writing techniques and exercises aimed at stimulating the imagination and developing writing strategies that can be used in an English classroom. They will do their own creative writing and revisions, much in the manner their students would do. Students will also design creative writing activities. There will also be opportunities for participants to share their ideas about writing and their experiments with writing. Students will leave the course with a dossier of creative writing activities for different ages and levels so they can use them later in their classes.

5. ASSESSMENT

Assessment criteria:

Given that this is a post-graduate course, a level C1 student is required to follow the course contents and complete the course assignments satisfactorily.

Students are expected to attend all the scheduled seminars. For those students who attend at least 75% of the face-to-face sessions, the assessment of the course will be based on a combination of active class participation, a portfolio including different written assignments, readings and class activities, and a final project.

- Class participation: 20%. This component will be assessed in terms of students' engagement in the face-to-face sessions, the quality of their contributions and their attitude.
- Creative writing portfolio: 40%. Analysis, design, development and assessment of creative writing activities. Each assignment will be marked independently and will add to the overall mark of the portfolio.
- Final project: 40%. Students will design and develop a creative writing project. The final mark for this part will be based on the submission of the written project and an oral presentation of the project in class.

Those who, due to special and exceptional reasons cannot come to class and request permission to take a final exam, will be expected to do the portfolio written assignments (50%), and the final project (50%)

IMPORTANT:

- Academic honesty. Plagiarism will not be tolerated and will result in automatic failure of this course.

7. ADDITIONAL PROVISION

The University of Alcalá guarantees that if, due to health requirements, the public authorities prevent teaching activity from taking place on the University's premises, the teaching plans' objectives will be met through an online teaching and evaluation methodology. The UAH commits to return to face-to-face teaching as soon as said impediments cease.
